U.S. COMMISSION ON CIVIL RIGHTS

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights is a temporary, independent, bipartisan agency established by Congress in 1957 and directed to:

- Investigate complaints alleging that citizens are being deprived of their right to vote by reason of their race, color, religion, sex, age, handicap, or national origin, or by reason of fraudulent practices;
- Study and collect information concerning legal developments constituting discrimination or a denial of equal protection of the laws under the Constitution because of race, color, religion, sex, age, handicap, or national origin, or in the administration of justice;
- Appraise Federal laws and policies with respect to discrimination or denial of equal protection of the laws because of race, color, religion, sex, age, handicap, or national origin, or in the administration of justice;
- Serve as a national clearinghouse for information in respect to discrimination or denial of equal protection of the laws because of race, color, religion, sex, age, handicap, or national origin;
- Submit reports, findings, and recommendations to the President and Congress.

MEMBERS OF THE COMMISSION

Arthur S. Flemming, Chairman

Mary F. Berry, Vice Chairman

Stephen Horn

Jill S. Ruckelshaus

Murray Saltzman

Louis Nuñez, Staff Director

Front cover: Civil rights for minorities and women are based on the 13th, 14th, 15th, and 19th amendments to the Constitution. These amendments inspired the design for the front cover of this publication.

1. Introduction

There are many Federal laws against discrimination. They were passed to protect people who, because of their race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, handicap, or other characteristics, are denied their rights.

This might occur when they try to vote, rent or buy a home, use a public place, get a job, an education, or a bank loan, or do many other things.

Discrimination is treating someone differently from another person because of a particular characteristic. Not all kinds of discrimination are illegal or even unfair; for example, States allow only their own residents to vote in State elections. There are also many kinds of unfair treatment that are not discrimination.

If you believe you have been discriminated against for the reasons listed in the first paragraph and want to file a complaint with the Federal Government, this booklet is intended to help you. It is not intended to tell you how to get assistance from numerous special programs the Federal Government has set up to help American Indians, minority businesses, veterans, handicapped children, and others.

How do you make out a complaint? Where do you send it?

It's not hard. It's your right, and your duty, too, for by acting on your own behalf, you are helping others who may suffer the same kind of discrimination.

If you have a complaint, you should first decide if you want to take it up with the Federal Government. States, counties, and municipalities also have laws against discrimination, and these are sometimes stronger than Federal ones. Frequently, these governments act on complaints more quickly. If they have applicable laws, you can file a complaint with them instead of, or in addition to, filing one with the Federal Government. The Federal Government has arrangements with some State governments to refer certain kinds of complaints to them.

The Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, the Civil Rights Act of 1968, and the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 are among the Federal laws which require that people be treated equally.

Many Federal agencies are responsible for enforcing these laws and regulations to implement them. Sometimes the Government must get a complaint from someone who has been discriminated against before it can act against an individual or organization that violates people's rights. Because laws and regulations frequently require that complaints be filed within certain time limits, it is important to file as soon as possible after the discriminatory act occurs.

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights has no power to enforce the law and hence cannot resolve individual complaints of discrimination. If, after reading this booklet, you are still not sure which agency you should contact, send your complaint to

Complaint Referral
U.S. Commission on Civil Rights
Washington, DC 20425

You may also write to the appropriate CCR regional office (see page 46).

2. How to File a Complaint

Your complaint should be in writing (typed or printed neatly), dated, signed, and should include the following information:

- your name
- your address and telephone numbers at home and at work
- the name and address of the person(s) and/or establishment you believe to have discriminated against you
- a description of the action or actions of discrimination. This should include the date and place of the action, what you believe to be the basis for discrimination (race, sex, etc.), and the names of persons who have information concerning your complaint.

When your complaint is investigated, you may also be asked for copies of receipts, contracts, or other records supporting your claim of discrimination. Do not send materials that you want returned with your initial complaint.

3. Where to File Complaints About Discrimination Because of Race, Color, Sex, Religion, or National Origin

Some agencies handle complaints only at their Washington headquarters; others want to get them at regional or local offices. Some handle them both places. If complaints are to go to regional or local offices, you are referred to the list in chapter 7, where the headquarters address is also listed, in case you want it. If complaints can go either to headquarters or to regional or local offices, the headquarters address is listed in the main text and you are also referred to the list in chapter 7.

Credit

If you think you have been discriminated against by a bank, savings and loan association, credit union, store, or other creditor

- in being discouraged from applying for credit or a loan,
- in being given unfair terms for credit or a loan,
- in being denied credit or a loan,

write to the agency in charge of enforcing equal credit practices of that lender. You should also complain if you think a lender is “redlining”—refusing to make loans or setting different conditions for loans on property in a certain place because of the area’s racial, religious, or ethnic makeup. You should complain, too, if you think someone has denied you credit because of characteristics, like race or religion, of persons with whom you deal.

A creditor must give you the name and address of the appropriate enforcement agency when it turns down the terms you request or denies you credit. If a lender does not offer you this information or refuses to give it to you, write to the appropriate agency in the list that follows. Some of these agencies may not investigate individual complaints, although they may take action against a lender because of a number of complaints against it.

If the creditor is

- a nationally chartered bank (“national” or “N.A.” will be in its name), write to the appropriate national bank region branch of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (see page 45),
 - a State-chartered bank and a member of the Federal Reserve System, write to

Division of Consumer and Community Affairs
Federal Reserve Board
Washington, DC 20551

- a State-chartered bank insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (it will display the FDIC symbol) and not a member of the Federal Reserve System, write to the appropriate FDIC regional Office (see page 39).
- a savings and loan institution insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (it will display the FSLIC symbol), write to the appropriate Federal Home Loan Bank (see page 40).
- a federally-chartered credit union (“Federal” will be in its name), write to the appropriate regional office of the National Credit Union Administration (see page 43).
- a stock and bond broker or dealer, write to

Office of Consumer Affairs
Securities and Exchange Commission
Washington, DC 20549

- a Federal land bank, Federal land bank association, Federal intermediate credit bank, or production credit association, write to

Office of Supervision
Farm Credit Administration
Washington, DC 20578

- a retail store, department store, small loan and finance company, gasoline or other nonbank credit card issuer, State-chartered credit union, or other creditor, write to

Equal Credit Opportunity
Federal Trade Commission
Washington, DC 20580

or to the appropriate FTC regional office (see page 42).

The Justice Department may sue lenders who show a pattern or practice of equal credit violations. It may also file suit in cases referred by the agencies that initially investigate complaints. You may write to

Chief, General Litigation Section
Civil Rights Division
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530

In addition to the reasons for discrimination mentioned in the introduction to this booklet, the Equal Credit Opportunity Act forbids discrimination because of marital status or age (with some limitations), because applicants receive public assistance, or because they have acted to protect their rights under equal credit laws. The ECOA does not cover discrimination because of handicap.

Write to the Federal Trade Commission at the address listed for more information about the ECOA, including your right to bring suit under this law (see also "Legal Action," page 28).

Education

In May 1980 the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare was split into two departments: the Department of Education (ED) and the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). However, the Department of Education assumed many functions associated with handicapped persons.

If you think you or your child has been discriminated against by a public school, school system, college, or university, or a private school, college, or university that gets Federal benefits, write to

Assistant Secretary for Civil Rights
U.S. Department of Education
Switzer Bldg., 330 C St. S.W.
Washington, DC 20201

Complaints to ED should be in writing, signed, and filed within 180 days after the discriminatory act takes place. You should include the information outlined on page 3 and also say if you think a whole group of students or teachers are being discriminated against. If the victim is an elementary or secondary student, list her or his name, grade, school, and school district.

According to a 1974 Supreme Court decision, discrimination may also include failure to provide instruction to non-English-speaking students.

Certain kinds of complaints should also be sent to the U.S. Attorney General, who may bring suit after receiving a written and signed complaint from:

- a parent (or group of parents), stating that his or her child is one of a group being discriminated against by a school board;
- an individual, or his or her parent, stating that he or she has been denied admission to or dismissed from a public college, university, or postsecondary vocational or technical school because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.

These complaints should be sent to

Chief, General Litigation Section
Civil Rights Division
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530

If you think you or your child has been discriminated against because of race, color, or national origin by a vocational, technical, elementary, or secondary school, which is privately-owned, operated for profit, and not run by a hospital, you should also write to

Chief Benefits Director
Veterans Administration
Washington, DC 20420

VA can act if it pays benefits for any veteran enrolled at the school, or otherwise assists the school, even if the person discriminated against is not a veteran.

If you think you or your child has been discriminated against by a private, nonprofit school, you may also write to the nearest district office of the Internal Revenue Service (see page 43). IRS can revoke a school's tax exemption for discriminatory policies.

Federal law prohibits all institutions of vocational and professional education and graduate higher education that get Federal funds from admitting students of only one sex. It forbids public institutions of undergraduate higher education to admit students of only one sex unless they have always had this policy.

Federal law does not prohibit unequal treatment of the sexes in schools whose main purpose is training for U.S. military or merchant marine service and in religious schools when anti-sex discrimination law conflicts with religious doctrines.

Employment and training

If you think you have been discriminated against

- by an employer in being hired or tested for a job, in being promoted or fired, in work opportunities or conditions, in pay or benefits, or in apprenticeship or training programs;
- by a labor union in its apprenticeship or training programs, hiring hall procedures, or membership requirements;
- by an employment agency, including a State employment service, in its job testing, referrals, or fees;

write or call the nearest office of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (see page 37). They will give you instructions and forms for filing a charge. Complaints must usually be filed within 180 days after the discriminatory act takes place.

Although EEOC prefers that its forms be used, you can also file a charge by writing a letter containing your name and address and that of the employer, union, or employment office you think has discriminated. You must date the letter and briefly explain what the discriminatory act was and when it occurred.

A Presidential order also forbids discrimination by companies that hold contracts with the Federal Government and by firms working on construction projects that get Federal funds. If you think the employer who has discriminated against you holds a contract with a Federal agency, write to the appropriate regional office of the Department of Labor (see page 35). Complaints must usually be filed within 180 days.

If your complaint is the only one against that employer, it will probably be referred to EEOC. If it is one of several, or if many other persons are also affected, the Labor Department may step in.

The Equal Pay Act requires that men and women who work in the same establishment (which could be a company or a branch of one) must be given equal pay if they are performing jobs under similar conditions that require equal skill, effort, and responsibility, unless the difference is for non-sex-related reasons.

If you think you have been given lower pay because of your sex, write to the nearest office of the EEOC (see page 37).

If you're a Federal employee or an applicant for Federal employment and think you have been discriminated against, within 30 days, contact the equal employment opportunity director of the agency involved for information on filing a complaint. If the agency rules against you, you should ask the equal employment opportunity director what appeal rights you have and what the time limits are for filing an appeal.

If your complaint concerns an action that may not be appealed to the Merit Systems Protection Board (such as most instances of refusing to hire or promote you), you may appeal directly to EEOC. Obtain a complaint form from the agency and file it with

Office of Appeals and Review
Equal Employment Opportunity Commission
Washington, DC 20506

If your complaint concerns an action that may be appealed to the MSPB (such as being fired), you may take your appeal there, or you may instead take the matter to court (see "Legal Action," page 28); MSPB complaint forms should be obtained from the agency and filed with

Merit Systems Protection Board
Washington, DC 20419

If the MSPB rules against you on the discrimination aspect of your case, you may then ask EEOC to review the MSPB decision, or you may go to court.

If you think you have been discriminated against by a State employment service (also covered by EEOC) or unemployment benefits office, or by Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) job training or public service employment programs, write to the appropriate regional office of the Department of Labor (see page 35).

If you think you have been discriminated against by an apprenticeship program registered with the Department of Labor or a State apprenticeship agency, write to

Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training
Employment and Training Administration
U.S. Department of Labor
Washington, DC 20213

If you think you have been discriminated against by a job training center that receives Federal assistance, write to the appropriate Federal agency. For example, the Veterans Administration (address on page 7) can act if it pays benefits for any veteran enrolled at the school, or otherwise assists the school, even if the person discriminated against is not a veteran.

If you think you have been discriminated against in employment by a court, jail, prison, police department, or other law enforcement agency, write to

Office of Civil Rights Compliance
Law Enforcement Assistance Administration
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20531

LEAA can act if it provides funds or assistance to the program or activity.

Numerous other Federal agencies, such as the Department of Agriculture, the Federal Communications Commission, the Department of the Treasury, and the Environmental Protection Agency, enforce statutes that contain prohibitions against discrimination by particular groups of employers. In almost all cases, EEOC also has jurisdiction. It may be to your advantage to file complaints with all agencies you think may enforce laws covering your situation.

EEOC is responsible for coordinating Federal enforcement of laws against employment discrimination. Its Office of Interagency Coordination works with all Federal agencies in developing more effective procedures and uniform standards for handling complaints and assuring compliance with employment discrimination laws. If you believe a complaint filed with another agency has not been properly handled, you should write to

Office of Interagency Coordination
Equal Employment Opportunity Commission
Washington, DC 20506

If you have questions concerning employment discrimination laws, you should write to EEOC's Office of Public Affairs at the city and ZIP code above.

Housing

If you think you have been discriminated against

- in trying to buy or rent a house or apartment,
- in getting a housing loan (see also the section on credit),
- in real estate broker services, or if you wish to complain about

- advertisements that housing is available only to persons of a certain race, color, sex, religion, or national origin,
- "blockbusting"—persuading owners to sell or rent housing by telling them that minorities are moving into a neighborhood, in order to make a profit, call 755-5490, if you live in the Washington, DC, area, or 800-424-8590 (toll free), if you live elsewhere. You may instead write to the appropriate area office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (see page 33).

Complaints must be written, signed, and filed with HUD within 180 days after the discriminatory act.

You may also complain to the Justice Department, which may step in if a pattern or practice of discrimination appears to exist, or if the denial of rights to a group of persons raises an important public issue. Write to

Chief, General Litigation Section
Civil Rights Division
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530

Neither HUD nor the Justice Department has authority to act in some instances of discrimination, such as those that occur in the sale or rental of a single-family home by a private individual who owns three or fewer such units and does not advertise or use a broker, or in the rental of a room or apartment in a dwelling containing four or fewer units, if the owner lives in one of them. However, the Civil Rights Act of 1866 forbids racial discrimination in the actual sale or rental of property; you may protect your rights by taking legal action (see page 28).

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act has recently been amended. It now covers arrangers of credit, such as referrals by realty brokers. Housing discrimination complaints involving real estate broker services, where such services include credit referral, should be sent to

Bureau of Consumer Protection
Federal Trade Commission
Washington, DC 20580

Law enforcement

If you have a complaint about police brutality or abuse of your rights by the police or other public officials, contact the nearest office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), listed in the front of your phone book under "police," or write to the Justice Department at the address on page 7.

Because the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration gives funds to State and local governments to improve law enforcement and criminal justice, it can also act. If you think you have been discriminated against by a court, jail, prison, or another law enforcement agency in employment or failure to provide police protection, you may also write to LEAA at the address on page 10.

Because law enforcement programs may receive revenue sharing funds, in cases of discrimination, you may also write to the Office of Revenue Sharing at the address on page 17.

Other federally-funded programs

A number of Federal laws prohibit discrimination in programs that get Federal money or other assistance. The 1964 Civil Rights Act forbids discrimination because of race, color, or national origin; the 1972 State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act forbids discrimination because of race, color, national origin, and sex; the 1973 Rehabilitation Act and the Education for Handicapped Children Act bar discrimination because of handicap, and the 1975 Age Discrimination Act prohibits age discrimination.

The 1972 Education Amendments forbid sex discrimination in federally-funded education programs, and other laws bar sex and religious discrimination in various other activities the Federal Government funds.

The law barring discrimination in a program is normally enforced by the agency that runs it. Although you may not be compensated for being discriminated against, the agency should cut off funds to the program if it continues to discriminate.

Information on where to file complaints about education, job training, housing, and law enforcement programs is contained in other sections of chapter 3. Programs in agriculture, health and welfare, recreation, transportation, environmental control, and other fields are covered in this section.

If you think you have been discriminated against because of sex or religion, but are not sure if a law covers your situation, go ahead and file a complaint on the chance that it does.

Many agencies have time limits (usually 180 days after the discriminatory act) on when complaints can be filed.

The law barring discrimination because of race, color, or national origin in federally-funded programs covers benefits and services, but not employment by the program, unless a main purpose of the operation is to provide employment, or unless discrimination in employment could cause discrimination in benefits and services.

In the event that employment is covered, you should file such a complaint with the agency funding the program. However, job discrimination is covered by other laws and complaints should also be filed as described in the employment section.

If you think you have been discriminated against by an agricultural or rural program, such as the Cooperative Extension Service or the Farmers Home Administration, or by a local welfare office in applying for food stamps, write to

Secretary of Agriculture
Washington, DC 20250

If you think you have been discriminated against by an antipoverty project such as the Community Action Program, write to

Associate Director, Office of Human Rights
Office of Legal Affairs and General Counsel
Community Services Administration
Washington, DC 20506

or to the appropriate CSA regional office (see page 30).

If you think you have been discriminated against by a program operated under a community development grant, write to the appropriate area office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (see page 33). You may instead call one of the phone numbers listed on page 11.

If you think you have been discriminated against by the National Guard, the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS), or by other defense programs, such as those of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers or the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency, write to

Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense
U.S. Department of Defense
Room 3E318, The Pentagon
Washington, DC 20301

If you think you have been discriminated against by any program funded or assisted by the Economic Development Administration, write to

Office of Civil Rights
U.S. Department of Commerce
Washington, DC 20301

To conserve needed energy and aid those persons least able to afford higher utility costs, the Department of Energy's weatherization assistance program makes funds available to States, local governments, or community action agencies, and in certain instances, Native American tribal organizations, to insulate the dwellings of low-income persons, especially the elderly and handicapped with low incomes. All low-income households are eligible to receive this assistance, which includes the installation of weatherization materials such as ceiling insulation, caulking, weather-stripping, storm windows, and making furnace efficiency modifications. Generally, Federal law prohibits programs receiving Federal money or other assistance from discriminating against individuals because of race, color, age, national origin, or condition of handicap; but in the weatherization program, discrimination on the basis of sex is also prohibited. (See also, sections of chapter 4 on age, page 20, and handicap, page 21).

If you think you have been discriminated against by a State or local government or community action agency in trying to get assistance under the weatherization program, write to

Department of Energy
Office of Consumer Affairs
1000 Independence Ave., S.W.
Room 8—G031
Washington, DC 20585

or call the toll-free, Watts hot line

800-424-9246

If you think you or your community have been discriminated against in trying to get benefits under programs for sewage treatment plants and other measures to improve the environment, write to

Director, Office of Civil Rights
Environmental Protection Agency

or to the appropriate EPA regional office (see page 36).

If you think you have been discriminated against by an institution that gets Federal funds under a health or welfare program, such as Medicare, Medicaid, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Family Planning, or Maternal and Child Health Services, write to the appropriate regional office of the Department of Health and Human Services (see page 32).

If you think you have been discriminated against by natural resource, recreation, or wildlife programs, such as those of the Heritage, Conservation and Recreation Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the National Park Service, write to

Office for Equal Opportunity
Office of the Secretary
U.S. Department of the Interior
Washington, DC 20240

If you think you have been discriminated against by a company that has received or dispenses Small Business Administration funds, write to

Chief, Compliance Division
Office of Equal Employment Opportunity
Small Business Administration
Washington, DC 20416

If you think you have been discriminated against by any program or activity of a State or local government such as employment or services, write to

Civil Rights Division
Office of Revenue Sharing
U.S. Department of the Treasury
Washington, DC 20226

If you think you have been discriminated against by a road building, mass transit, or other transportation program, write to

Departmental Office of Civil Rights
U.S. Department of Transportation
Washington, DC 20590

Such discrimination could include providing better transportation services to one part of a city, where mostly whites live, than to another part of a city, where mostly minorities live.

The Justice Department is responsible for coordinating enforcement of the law barring discrimination because of race, color, or national origin. If you think you have been discriminated against for one of these reasons by a program that gets some kind of Federal assistance, but you don't know which agency to contact, write to

Director, Office of Coordination and Review
Civil Rights Division
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530

You should also contact the Justice Department if you believe such a complaint has not been properly handled by another agency.

Although direct discrimination by a Federal agency in awarding grants to community organizations, governments, or others is not necessarily barred by Federal statutes, it is prohibited by the U.S. Constitution. Complaints should be filed with the responsible agency, but if that agency does not act, you may have to bring suit to protect your rights (see "Legal Action," page 28).

Public places and facilities

If you think you have been discriminated against while using or trying to use

- a hotel, restaurant, theater, sports arena, or other place for use of the general public;
- a courthouse, jail, hospital, park, swimming pool, transportation system, or other facility owned or operated by, or on behalf of, a State or local government (except for educational institutions, see instead page 6), contact the local office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), listed in the front of your phone book under “police,” or the nearest office of a U.S. attorney (see page 47). If you are not able to locate an FBI agent or U.S. attorney, write to

Chief, Special Litigation Section
Civil Rights Division
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530

If you think you have been discriminated against while using or trying to use a Federal facility, write to the agency in charge of operating that facility. You can find out the name of the agency by calling one of the Federal Information Centers, located in major cities throughout the Nation.

If the agency does not act, the Justice Department has no power to step in, but you may sue privately. (See “Legal Action,” page 28.)

Complaints about State and local government facilities may also be made to the Office of Revenue Sharing at the address on page 17.

Voting

If you think you were discriminated against when you tried to vote, immediately complain to local voting officials and contact the nearest office of a U.S. attorney (see page 47) or write to the Justice Department at the address on page 7. You should also complain if you experienced discrimination when you tried to register, or when you cam- paid for office, took part in a political meeting, signed up other voters, or served as an election official or poll watcher.

You might have been stopped from doing these things, or you might have been beaten, lost your job or your home, or been threatened or hurt in some way. You should also complain or write to the Justice Department at the address below

- if you are discriminated against in trying to register or vote because you don't know how to read or write or can't speak or read English;
- if you don't know how to read or write and are not assisted in voting;
- if you are an American Indian, Asian American, Alaskan Native, or Hispanic and are not given help you request in voting (although this right depends on how many members of your community need such assistance);
- if you think a change in local voting laws has a discriminatory purpose or effect.

Write to

Chief, Voting Section
Civil Rights Division
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530

4. Other Kinds of Discrimination

The major civil rights laws do not forbid discrimination on account of age, handicap, or lack of citizenship, but a number of other statutes cover some of the same kinds of discriminatory situations. Age discrimination can affect both young and old people. Handicaps can be mental and emotional as well as physical.

Age

Federal law forbids age discrimination in credit, although a creditor may consider age to the extent that it bears on other things used to determine creditworthiness. For example, an elderly applicant might not qualify for loan terms in which the downpayment is small and the length of time for repayment exceeds the borrower's life expectancy. If you think you have been discriminated against in obtaining credit, see page 4.

Federal law forbids age discrimination in employment against most persons age 40 and over by most Federal agencies and against nearly all individuals from ages 40 to 70 by employment agencies and most employers and labor unions. Complaints should be filed within 180 days after the discriminatory act takes place. Ways in which discrimination can occur are explained on page 8. Most apprenticeship programs are not covered by laws forbidding age discrimination.

If you are 40 or over and think you have been discriminated against by a Federal agency, follow the Federal employee complaint procedure described on page 9. If you are between the ages of 40 and 70 and think you have been discriminated against by an employer, employment agency, or labor union, write to the nearest EEOC local office (see page 37).

With certain exceptions, age discrimination in programs that receive Federal money is forbidden. See the sections of chapter 3 on education (page 6), housing (page 11), law enforcement (page 12), and other federally-funded programs (page 13) for addresses where complaints should be filed. Please note that other material in these sections may not be relevant; for example, Federal law does not bar age discrimination in housing unless Federal assistance is involved.

The chief law barring discrimination in federally-funded programs, the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, covers services and benefits, but not employment, unless the activity is a CETA public service employment program. See page 10 for where to file complaints concerning CETA programs.

The Department of Health and Human Services coordinates enforcement of the Age Discrimination Act. If you think you have been discriminated against by a program that gets some kind of Federal assistance, but don't know which agency to contact, write to the HHS headquarters address on page 32. You should also write to this address if you believe your complaint has not been properly handled by another agency.

Mass transit facilities that get Federal funds may be required to make provisions for the elderly and allow them cutrate fares during nonpeak hours. If you think a mass transit project has failed to meet these requirements, write to

Urban Mass Transportation Administration
U.S. Department of Transportation
Washington, DC 20590

Consumer Affairs Officer
Federal Railroad Administration
U.S. Department of Transportation
Washington, DC 20590

If you are 18 years old or over and think you have been discriminated against in voting, see page 18.

Handicap

If architectural barriers limit your use of a building constructed, financed, modified, or leased with Federal funds (except for most private residences and military facilities), or of a building in which there is a Federal or federally-assisted activity, write to

Access America
Washington, DC 20201

Some buildings are exempt from providing for handicapped persons. Federal contractors and programs that receive Federal financial assistance are also required to provide reasonable accommodation for handicapped persons, which in some cases may require removal of architectural barriers. For complaints related to federally-aided programs, write to HHS headquarters (see page 32). For complaints against contractors, write to the appropriate regional office of the Department of Labor (see page 35).

States must provide adequate and reasonable access for handicapped persons, including those in wheelchairs, across curbs built or replaced after June 30, 1976. If a lack of curb-cuts limits your ability to cross at a crosswalk, write to

Office of Highway Safety
Federal Highway Administration
U.S. Department of Transportation
Washington, DC 20590

Federal law forbids discrimination against handicapped persons by any program receiving Federal money. (The 1978 amendments to the Rehabilitation Act extended coverage of section 504 to include programs and activities of Federal agencies.) The agencies that enforce this law may have time limits (usually 180 days after the discriminatory act) on when complaints can be filed.

Public school systems must provide education to handicapped persons comparable to that given to other students, and no educational institutions receiving Federal funds may discriminate against handicapped persons in employment or services.

These institutions must put handicapped students in classes with other students unless a handicap is so severe that the person cannot be educated adequately in such a setting. Tests and other methods used to evaluate and place handicapped students may not be racially or culturally discriminatory. If you think you or your handicapped child has been discriminated against by an educational institution, write to:

Office for Special Education and Rehabilitative
Department of Education
Donohoe Bldg., 400 Sixth St. S.W.
Washington, DC 20024

If you think you have been discriminated against in employment or services by federally-funded programs in housing, law enforcement, in any other field, or by any program of a State or local government, see pages 11–17 for addresses for filing complaints. Please note that other material in these sections may not be relevant; for example, Federal law does not bar discrimination against handicapped persons in housing unless Federal assistance is involved.

The Department of Health and Human Services is responsible for coordinating enforcement of the chief law barring discrimination against handicapped persons in federally-funded programs. If you think you have been discriminated against by a program that gets some kind of Federal assistance, but don't know which agency to contact, write to the HHS headquarters address on page 32. You should also write to this address if you believe your complaint has not been properly handled by another agency.

If you think you have been discriminated against by a Federal agency in trying to get a job you can perform satisfactorily in spite of a handicap, follow the Federal employee complaint procedure explained on page 9. If you think you have been discriminated against by an employer holding a Federal contract in trying to get such a job, write to the appropriate regional office of the Department of Labor (see page 35). Complaints against contractors should be filed within 180 days after the discriminatory act takes place.

If you think you have been discriminated against by a State employment or unemployment benefits office, or by a CETA program, an apprenticeship program recognized by the Department of Labor, or a federally-funded job training center, write to the appropriate addresses listed on page 10.

Mass transit facilities that get Federal funds may be required to make provisions for handicapped persons and allow them cutrate fares during nonpeak hours. If you think a mass transit project has failed to meet these requirements, write to the first Department of Transportation address on page 21.

If you are denied service on an Amtrak train that runs between cities, write to the second Department of Transportation address on page 21.

You may obtain a free pamphlet titled, "Your Rights as a Disabled Person," by writing to

Handicapped
U.S. Department of Health and Human Services

For more information on Federal laws and programs affecting handicapped persons, write to obtain "A Handbook on the Legal Rights of Handicapped Persons." It also covers laws of the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Virginia and is available from

Superintendent of Documents
U.S. Government Printing Office
Washington, DC 20402

Contact the Superintendent of Documents at the above address and include the following stock number, 040-000-00355-0.

Lack of citizenship

The Supreme Court has ruled that the Constitution protects, to some extent, persons in this country who are not U.S. citizens from arbitrary denials of their rights. It has also ruled that, without a compelling reason, States may not deny public benefits, such as education or welfare assistance, to permanent resident aliens, or restrict benefits only to those aliens who have lived in the United States for a certain number of years.

However, the laws that prohibit discrimination because of race, national origin, or other characteristics do not cover lack of citizenship. In some cases, what is claimed to be discrimination against noncitizens is merely a disguise for discrimination because of national origin and is therefore covered under these laws. Because lack of citizenship is not a prohibited basis for discrimination in the civil rights laws enforced by Federal agencies, it has frequently been necessary for noncitizens to bring legal action to get their rights (see "Legal Action," page 28).

Some federally-funded programs are available to noncitizens, and some are not, depending on the statute governing their operations. Some programs make distinctions between permanent resident aliens and others.

If you are informed that you cannot participate in or receive benefits of a program that receives Federal funds because you are not a citizen, write to the appropriate agency listed in chapter 3 to determine whether the denial is legal. See the sections on education (page 6), State employment services and unemployment benefits offices, CETA programs, apprenticeship programs recognized by the Department of Labor, and federally-funded job training centers (page 10), housing (page 11), law enforcement (page 12), and other federally-funded programs (page 13) for agency addresses. Please note that other material in these sections may not be relevant.

5. Special Circumstances

American Indians

If you are discriminated against because you are an American Indian or an Alaskan native, you should file a complaint with the appropriate agency listed in chapter 3 of this booklet. In addition, you should write to

Office of Indian Rights
Civil Rights Division
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530

For a more detailed explanation of your rights as a native American, write to obtain a free copy of American Indian Civil Rights Handbook. It is available from

Publications Warehouse
U.S. Commission on Civil Rights
621 North Payne St.
Alexandria, VA 22314

Institutionalized persons

If you do not receive treatment or are otherwise deprived of your rights while involuntarily confined to a nonpenal institution, write to the Justice Department address on page 7.

Military personnel

If you are in the U.S. Navy and have a discrimination complaint about some aspect of military life, it should be handled through the chain of command.

If you are in the U.S. Army or Marine Corps, discrimination complaints are handled through the chain of command and inspector general channels.

If you are in the U.S. Air Force, a discrimination complaint should first be taken up with your supervisor or commander. If it is not resolved to your satisfaction, you should contact the equal opportunity and treatment officer or the noncommissioned officer at your wing or base social actions office.

If you are in any branch of the service and are discriminated against in off-base housing, contact your post or base housing referral office. If the discriminatory act took place in the United States, you should also file a complaint with HUD (see page 11).

Legal action

It may be necessary to bring a legal suit to enforce your rights. Brown v. Board of Education, which resulted in the Supreme Court's 1954 landmark school desegregation decision, was based on a charge that segregated schools violated the 14th amendment of the Constitution. Cases have also been brought against Federal agencies for failing to enforce civil rights laws adequately.

However, if an administrative procedure has been set up to deal with a particular problem, such as employment discrimination, courts may require that process to be exhausted before a case can be filed. In some civil rights cases, attorney's fees are awarded to the side that wins.

For legal assistance, you may contact your local legal aid society or bar association, or private groups, such as the American Civil Liberties Union, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund, the National Organization for Women, and the Disability Rights Center.
