THE ACADEMIC COSTUME

The traditional black caps and gowns worn by students and faculty in the procession have been the historic costume of scholars since medieval times. Because many scholars of that period were members of monastic orders, the academic costume probably represents an adaptation of ecclesiastical dress.

A uniform code for dress was drafted by an intercollegiate commission in 1893, and has since been adopted by the majority of colleges and universities in the United States.

Each of the three academic degrees — bachelor's, master's, and doctor's — has its own distinctive gown and hood.

The gown representing the bachelor's degree is distinguished by its long pointed sleeve.

The "master's" gown has a longer, narrow, closed sleeve, extending below the knee; the arm is passed through a slit at the elbow.

In contrast, the doctor's gown has a full bell-shaped sleeve with three bars of velvet. The opening of this gown is faced with wide velvet bands, which may be black or of a color indicating the general field of learning of the wearer — for example, blue for philosophy, green for medicine, purple for law.

The most colorful and distinctive item of the academic costume is the hood, which passes around the neck and extends down the back. The doctor's hood is the largest, and the bachelor's hood is the smallest.

Often the use of a bachelor's hood is omitted. The color of the velvet edging indicates the wearer's field of learning. Below are the colors that will be worn by graduates of the professional schools of the University of Maryland at Baltimore.

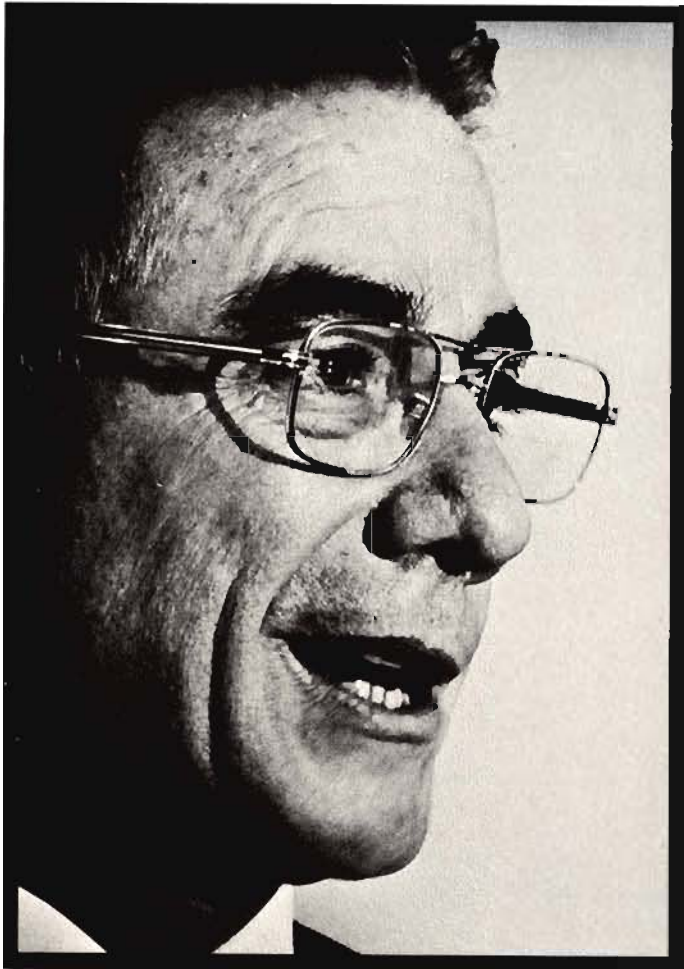

Dentistry	Lilac
Law	Purple
Medicine	Green
Nursing	Apricot
Pharmacy	Olive
Philosophy	Blue
Social Work and Community Planning	Citron

The colors of the silk lining exposed in the center of the hood are those of the college or university which conferred the degree.

Although the cap, or "mortar board," is uniform in design for all degrees, the tassel may be either black or the color of the field of learning. The tassel of the doctor's cap may be gold.

WELCOME TO THE 1974 GRADUATES

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND AT BALTIMORE

Congratulations to you, to your family and to your many friends on this important day in your life.

The completion of your formal education leading to the professional degree that you will receive during the graduation program marks an important step in your career. As you will recognize, a great many hours of study and practice have been necessary for you to receive this recognition. The requirements are high because of the importance of your being qualified to ably and effectively serve people.

The University combines the teaching of students with research to discover new knowledge and with service in order to keep the educational program relevant. This brings to the environment the opportunity for you to progress as rapidly and as far in your formal training as time and energy will permit. Of all these University activities, the offering of educational opportunity for students remains the primary goal. You are a product of this nation's concern for a better future.

This country and the world are more diligently searching for ways to improve the lives of people than has been the situation at many past times in our history. This means that your professional talents will be in great demand and that you will have an unusual opportunity through a lifetime of learning and dedication to make lasting contributions.

The graduates of the professional schools of the University of Maryland at Baltimore campus have developed an enviable reputation in serving their chosen professions. We have every confidence that you will add luster to the record of those who have graduated in earlier years.

Just as each of you as individuals are finding a place in a complex and changing society, the University is changing from year to year to better serve the needs of society. There is great difficulty in discerning between simple change and those changes that represent desirable progress. The University can gain much from your continued interest and counsel and earnestly solicits your future concern.

May the days ahead be ones in which you face in a confident manner the unfolding challenges and receive in the process the rewards that come when a job is well done.

HONORARY DEGREE

DEAN MITCHELL I. GINSBERG
Doctor of Laws

The University of Maryland at Baltimore is adding another first to its long existence and heritage by presenting its first honorary degree in social work. Dean Mitchell I. Ginsberg, who occupies a unique niche in his field, is the recipient.

The dean of Columbia University School of Social Work, which is the oldest in existence and one of the most prestigious, is also special advisor to the President of Columbia University on Community Affairs and is an outstanding leader and spokesman whose influence has been felt far and wide. He has been described as providing an exemplary model for the profession, combining both academic activities and social action leadership.

Dean Ginsberg has been advisor to President Kennedy, President Johnson and President Nixon. He was involved in attempts to reform the welfare system and has worked closely with labor as well as corporations.

Equally at home with the presidents of large American corporations and the most militant poverty and civil-rights groups, Dean Ginsberg has demonstrated rare skill in handling conflict, interpreting human needs and identifying pitfalls in social policies.

As administrator of the Human Resources Administration in New York City, Dean Ginsberg had to cope with some of the most perplexing and difficult problems during that city's volatile and turbulent period.

He served in the cabinet of Mayor John Lindsay and as advisor to a succession of national administrations.

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Tufts College, Dean Ginsberg completed his professional education at the New York School of Social Work, which later became the Columbia University School of Social Work.

Dean Ginsberg's career spans more than three decades, beginning as a group worker in a community center in Boston and embracing such diverse activities as social case work in the U.S. Army during World War II, the directorship of the Bureau of Personnel and Training for the National Jewish Welfare Board, consultation with both the Peace Corps and VISTA, and service on a number of national commissions and committees.

In 1971 Dean Ginsberg was elected president of the National Association of Social Workers. He served on the board of directors of the Whitney M. Young, Jr. Memorial Foundation, the National Conference on Social Welfare, the Health Insurance Plan of New York, the International Council on Social Welfare and a number of other groups.

Continuing a pattern developed during the past decade, Dean Ginsberg frequently shuttles between New York and Washington, D.C. advising a number of Senate and House committees on national health insurance proposals, welfare reform and other important aspects of social legislation. His dedication, perceptive insight and humility have won him the respect and affection of his professional colleagues as well as countless leaders and citizens in all walks of life.

HONORARY DEGREE

DR. CONRAD LUCIUS INMAN, SR.
Doctor of Science

"We have been identifying persons who are graduates of The University of Maryland at Baltimore who have served with distinction the citizens of this State, and, at the same time made such contributions to their profession that they have gained national recognition which reflects credit to their profession in Maryland," Dr. Albin O. Kuhn, chancellor, recently declared.

"We feel," he continued, "that Dr. Conrad Lucius Inman meets, in an outstanding manner, these qualifications that make him worthy of recognition by the University of Maryland."

When 18-year-old Conrad Inman left his native Mount Airy, N.C. to attend the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery in 1912, little did he know that from that day on he would call Maryland home.

Since earning his Doctor of Dental Surgery degree in 1915, Dr. Inman has spent his life serving the citizens of Baltimore and Maryland, first 2 years as a general practitioner of dentistry and then the past 57 years as an oral surgeon.

While the major portion of his professional activities have been devoted to Maryland dentistry, he has gained national recognition through his work with the American Society of Oral Surgeons, the American Board of Oral Surgery and the Middle Atlantic Society of Oral Surgeons, which he helped to found and served as president.

Dr. Inman's active interest in his profession has been recognized by his election to numerous offices and his receiving special awards and recognitions.

Honors bestowed upon Dr. Inman include Fellow, American College of Dentists; Distinguished Alumnus Award, University of Maryland Dental School; National Psi Omega of the Year; Gorgas Odontological Society, University of Maryland, and Omicron Kappa Upsilon Honorary Dental Society.

Despite being on the staff of many of the hospitals in the area, Dr. Inman still found time to serve as president, at various times, of the Baltimore City Dental Society, Maryland State Dental Association, Psi Omega Dental Fraternity, and Alumni Association of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, Dental School, University of Maryland.

However, there is another way to measure Dr. Inman's devotion to his profession, which cannot be expressed by tangible means. This important characteristic of a health professional is Dr. Inman's deep sense of human kindness.

Perhaps Dean John J. Salley of the University of Maryland at Baltimore Dental School sums it up with:

"Dr. Inman's deep concern for his patients and his love of his fellow man have served as special models to his family and his friends, as well as to his colleagues in the dental profession for three generations. There is no more highly regarded and loved dental practitioner in Maryland than Dr. Conrad L. Inman."

ACADEMIC DEGREES

The first known degree was a doctorate conferred by the University of Bologna in the middle of the 12th century. Originally, the doctor's and master's degrees were used interchangeably, each indicating that the holder was qualified to give instruction to students.

The bachelor's or baccalaureate degree only indicated entrance upon a course of study preparatory to the doctorate or mastership. Gradually, however, the bachelor's degree came to mean successful completion of one level of study preparatory to the higher degrees.

From the continent, the use of academic degrees spread to English universities. Harvard University, William and Mary, and Yale followed the British pattern in the New World. There are more than 1,600 different academic degrees currently conferred by American colleges and universities.

The Bachelor's Degree

The bachelor's degree represents completion of a four-year course of study of collegiate grade, and is the oldest academic degree used by American institutions of higher learning. The degree, Bachelor of Arts, was first conferred in America in 1642 on nine young men composing the first graduating class of Harvard College. Yale conferred its first Bachelor of Arts in 1702; Princeton, in 1748; William and Mary in 1753; Pennsylvania, in 1757, and Columbia, in 1758.

The Bachelor of Science was awarded to four graduating members of the class of 1851 of Harvard University, probably the first to receive this degree from any institution. From 1851 to 1905, the degree was conferred only upon students registered in the Lawrence Scientific School; after 1905, on other students of Harvard also.

The Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy degree is conferred upon students who have successfully completed the two-year preprofessional program and the three years required for the professional program.

The Master's Degree

The master's degree is an academic honor conferred upon students who have successfully completed one or two years' work beyond the baccalaureate. A thesis and an oral examination are usually required.

The word magister connected with a qualifying phrase was used among the Romans as a title of honor; but its present meaning must be traced to the time of the establishment of the oldest universities. Regularly organized faculties were not then known as they now exist in the universities.

The whole circle of academic activity was limited to seven liberal arts, and those who received public honors in the completion of their course of studies, for their diligence and knowledge, and who had already received the degree of baccalaureus (bachelor), were called magistri artium (masters of the liberal arts).

The Doctor's Degree

This is a term meaning teacher or instructor applied by ancient Romans to those who delivered public lectures on philosophical subjects. In the Middle Ages, it came into use as a title of honor borne by men of great learning.

It was first made an academic title at the University of Bologna, which received from the Emperor the right of appointing doctores legum (doctors of laws). The University of Paris followed in 1175.

Soon after, the popes granted the universities the right of appointing doctores canonum et decretalium (teachers of the canon law); and when the study of the civil law came to be combined with that of the canon law, the title was changed to doctor utriusque juris (teacher of both laws).

The faculties of theology and medicine followed that of law in conferring this title.

The doctorate in philosophy and science, and occasionally in theology and law, is given beyond the baccalaureate degree, and requires from two to five years, the writing of a thesis and the passing of written and oral examinations.

The doctor's degree represents the most advanced earned degree conferred by American institutions.

There are two distinct types: the professional or practitioner's degree, and the research degree. The first type represents advanced training for the practice of various professions, principally: Doctor of Medicine, Doctor of Dental Surgery, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine and Doctor of Pharmacy.

These degrees carry no implication of original research and are classified by the U.S. Office of Education, with bachelor's degrees, as the first professional degrees.

The second type of doctor's degree is classified as research doctorates representing prolonged periods of advanced study, usually accompanied by a dissertation designed to be a substantial contribution to existing knowledge on the subject.

The most important of these, the Doctor of Philosophy, no longer has an implication of philosophy for its holder, but represents advanced research in any of the major fields of knowledge. It was first awarded in the United States by Yale University in 1861.
