 Dear Thurgood:

 AUG 5 1937

I received your letter last week. Thank you very much for the warning and believe you me I shall be very careful. I have intended to write before this but coupled with congenital laziness I have been extremely reluctant to send you and Charley my marks.

They were pretty awful and completely dashed all hope of the 'Review'. Well here goes — four B's and two C's — I am very sorry and believe you me I am very deeply disappointed.

I have one hope left; to make the 'Review' as a contributor — this is very faint unless I get really good. I thought perhaps either you or Charley could suggest something on which I might do the groundwork this summer. The tone of the Review is to stress specialized topics peculiar to Maryland (and leave the broader aspects to the Harvard et al 'Reviews'). If you have anything I might start on send it as soon as possible so that I might begin work on it.

I have also written Dr. Wesley as to the exact residue of the fund allocated for the scholarship so that I can get that straight. I am thanking you and wishing you the best of luck.

Sincerely,
 Donald Murray
